Introduction to Lean Manufacturing

Heard of the 7 wastes of manufacturing and want to find out more?

Been using lean tools for a while, but could do with a refresher?

Come along to this half day workshop to learn practical, down to earth ways to implement these proven techniques in your own workplace.

Find out how small operational changes can make a huge difference.

Identify and implement improvements through:

- Practical demonstrations of lean manufacturing tools
- Identification of the 7 types of waste found in manufacturing, eg over-production and excess inventory
- Shop floor layout: identification and improvement techniques
- Showing how reducing batch size adds to manufacturing flexibility
- Applying the concepts within your own business

Quick Changeovers / SMED*

Thinking of buying a new machine to meet capacity constraints?

Having difficulty finding skilled staff?

Reduce production changeover times by over 50% using our proven approach.

*Single Minute Exchange of Die (SMED) is one of the many lean production methods for reducing waste in a manufacturing process.

Performing faster change-overs is important in manufacturing, or any process, because they make low cost flexible operations possible.

Quick change-overs are key to reducing production batch sizes and thereby improving flow.

We will show you, using a team based activity, how to develop a rapid and efficient way of changing a manufacturing process from running the current product to running the next product.

Free up hidden capacity in your business.
